DETAILED ACTION

1. This is the first action on the merits. Claims 1-14 are pending.

Information Disclosure Statement

1. The Information Disclosure Statement, filed 10/20/03 (2 pages), has been considered in full.

Drawings

2. The drawings, as originally filed, are acceptable as formal.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

3. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

4. Claim 3 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

Claim 3 recites "buffering air". It is not clear what this limitation requires. There doesn't seem to be an associated discussion in the specification and the Examiner is uncertain as to the scope of this language.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

5. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

6. Claims 1-14, as best understood, are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Camboulives et al. (4,373,421) in view of Provenzano (4,858,427).

Camboulives et al. shows the claimed invention including a lubricating device for a turbine engine where air from a compressor [C] passes through a venturi (2a) and entrains oil through passage (62) and sprays a air/oil mist onto a bearing (65) to be lubricated; the oil supply passage having a check valve (62a) in the supply line; the air buffering against the bearing.

But Camboulives et al. fails to teach that the emergency lubricator functions under normal operating conditions. [Note that the requirement that the device function during normal and abnormal modes is intended use in the preamble of, for example, claim 1; however, the latter recitation in claim 1 "during both modes of operation" appears to require this limitation. Thus, it is assumed the claims require a lubricating system which functions during both normal and emergency modes.]

Provenzano teaches that is is old and well known to allow both the normal and back-up lubrication systems to operate continuously (see column 1, lines 46-50).

Art Unit: 3682

Therefore, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to allow the lubrication device of Camboulives et al. to operate at all times in view of the explicit teaching of Provenzano for the purpose of continuously circulating the emergency oil so it does not become stagnant and to allow for the elimination of the electr-mechanical valving in Camboulives et al.
